

I'm rebuilding this file. In this original file, based on limited (five year data), I suggested a self selection theory to explain the strong correlation between Rio Americano's physics scores and their class sizes. I've now used all the STAR data available (ten years) and found my supposition was based on sample error. When I have the time, I'll put a corrected analysis and one for California as well.

I pray you are patient.

bc